There is only one server time zone, and this is obtained using the `date_default_timezone_get()` function, although this can be overridden with the `$GLOBALS['server_timezone']` variable in the `config.inc` file.

Advise your users not to disable cookies, at least for this one domain, and the setting for client timezone on each `MNU_USER` record will always be available and will always be accurate. This would make a default setting for the client time zone completely redundant.
