When you return from a popup the default behaviour is for the column values in $select_array to be inserted into $fieldarray. This will cause the values for existing fields in $fieldarray to be overwritten regardless of whether they are part of the primary key, a candidate key or just foreign keys. If the fields being returned have one name, but you want to change them to another then you should do so in the _cm_popupReturn() method.

The _cm_getForeignData() method is designed to perform lookups on foreign key fields in order to retrieve additional data.
