I want to be able to produce a list view PDF document that has a horizontal rule separating each of the body lines. I'm finding that I can only produce a border around the overall columns in the body section, and not around each cell.

I can separate the lines using shading, but really want to be able to produce a lookalike of an existing form (white background in tabular format).

Is it possible to do this?

Not at present.

UPDATE: An amendment was made in July 2009 to allow the border of each cell in the line to be specified as well as the background colour of alternate lines.
