Thanks for the time you took for giving accurate answers.

Of course with 1and1 there are alternatives that allow for more sophisticated database layout. My tariff includes 10 MySQL databases. However in order to have complete control over naming, I would have to move from web hosting to managed server, and this is something I am not really enthusiastic about.

I will check out the possibilities I have here with our local machines and then I'll sure be back in the forum.
