The variable `$GLOBALS['report']` contains the name of a file, and the contents of this file is read into another variable called `$GLOBALS['report_structure']` at the start of the script within the `initSession()` function. Although changing the value in `$GLOBALS['report']` within the object code would be a waste of time, there is nothing to stop you from changing the contents of `$GLOBALS['report_structure']` before it is processed.
