I agree, and I do this too. All the code is running perfectly fine on the test server. The issue is only occurring on the production server. I am really suspecting database corruption.

The error even occurs running logon.php. So I'm not even getting as far as logging in. The error occurs BEFORE the login screen is displayed.

If you want to see this you can try <http://www.medaltest.com/menu/logon.php>

So the error is occurring within the menu application, of which no code has been changed. This is why I am suspecting some database corruption, but am struggling how to identify it on the production server.
