Subject: Re: System Shutdown Times
Posted by gpatti on Mon, 08 Jun 2009 18:07:36 GMT
View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

A suggestion in addition to the cookie solution:

What about the ability to set a default client timezone in the system configuration. This would be better than assuming the server location is the most appropriate default timezone.

The cookies would override this if necessary. In the cases where cookies are disabled or don't work for any reason, at least the developer controlled default would cater for more clients than the server default.

Graham