But I think the formatting is being applied / not applied by the framework - and is not consistent.

In the `print_before()` method the formats of all fields in `$previous_row` and `$current_row` are the same, without any specific coding. However, in the `print_after()` method the formats are not the same for the `$current_row` and `$next_row`.

Do I specifically need to apply formatting in the `print_after()` method?
