Subject: Re: eMail sent automatically
Posted by AJM on Tue, 24 Jun 2014 08:15:34 GMT
View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

There is no pattern to send emails for the simple reason that there are too many variables. The email text may come from an input screen, or it may come from somewhere else. It may go to a single person, or it may go to a group. The transport mechanism may be one of several options, et cetera, et cetera.

Considering that you can send an email with a single function call after you have filled in all the options, you can call that function in any of the existing patterns as part of your application processing. Sending emails is not a function of the framework.