If I understand you right, the clearing out happens because the fields in the $where string are different to those in the fieldlist. In the fieldlist are the fields of the $tablename table. In the $where string are the fields (with the right values) of the table from which the pattern is called. I hope I did understand you right. As you adviced in one of your articles I try to give unique field names in each table.
Do I have a wrong table name in one of my controller scripts?
