Step through with your debugger to see what happens when you press the navigation button. You should see the contents of the $_POST array being merged wth both the outer and inner entities, then the $selection string is built using the details of the selected entries before being passed to the UPDATE4 function.