Tony,

The searchbox box in your www.radicore.org site does not work as expected.

It always searches on the entire web and never limits the search to your <http://radicore.radicore.org> and <http://tonymarston.tonymarston.net> domains even when the appropriate radio button is checked (selected).

Thanks.

PS. I am using Firefox.

I am using the HTML code which was supplied by Google. Has this changed at all? I've search the Google website but I cannot find any useful information.

Tony,

It seems Google only searches on one domain at the same time

The solution is to add another radio button and to separate the searches for www.radicore.org and www.tonymarston.net

The alternative is use sitemaps

Thanks.

Bugger google for changing what used to be working! I changed the search area to list my two sites separately as it's too much effort to create a sitemap.
